

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

• Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's launch our new book!

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons for or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- When you plan a business event, what are the things you have to consider?
- What are some ways to promote a new product?

Can Do Statements

- I can discuss reasons and results of an event or action related to work and jobs.
- I can express duty and advice related to work and job issues.
- I can exchange complex professional information related to work and job issues.

Let's Explore!

Kristi and Adam prepare for the book launch.

* A "book launch" is an event, often a party to celebrate and promote a new book.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Adam: Wow, this looks great! You really thought of everything! This is a really great venue.
- Kristi: Thanks! It has been a lot of work, but I'm happy with how it's turned out so far. I'm nervous though. We still have a lot to set up and things could still go awry.
- Adam: Like what?
- Kristi: Well, my biggest fear is that no one will show up. I have invited a lot of people, but it is possible that no one will come. Maybe I should have invited more of my friends and family. At least I know they would come for sure.
- Adam: What else are you worried about?
- Kristi: Well, I have ordered food and some wine and juice. I ordered some fruit trays and veggies and dip and some cheese and crackers. I think I should have ordered some more. I guess I can always run out and get more if I need to.
- Adam: How much wine have you ordered?
- Kristi: Ten bottles.
- Adam: Yeah, you should have ordered more.
- Kristi: Adam! It's not for you! Help me set up these tables. I've planned a table for the food, a table for drinks and a table for the author to sit behind and autograph copies.
- Adam: Is she going to read the book?
- Kristi: Yeah, I think she is going to sit in an armchair to read and the kids can sit on the floor.
- Adam: There are going to be kids here?
- Kristi: Yes, Adam, it's a kids book, remember?
- Adam: Oh right. So that's why you haven't ordered much wine.
- Kristi: We should make sure that there's enough space for everyone. Do you think we should set up an alternate entrance? I don't want there to be a bottleneck in the entrance.
- Adam: That's a good idea. There's a side door. Let's use that as an entrance too. I'll see if there's a place we can put up a sign to direct people to the entrance.
- Kristi: Thanks Adam. That's really helpful. We've only got a few hours until the caterers arrive so let's get the space set up.

Let's Practice!

Have Kristi and Adam remembered everything?

Instructions: Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. This is a really great venue.
2. We still have a lot to set up and things could still go awry.
3. Help me set up these tables.
4. The author will sit behind this table and autograph copies.
5. You sit in an armchair to read and the kids can sit on the floor.
6. Do you think we should set up an alternate entrance?
7. I don't want there to be a bottleneck in the entrance.
8. I'll see if there's a place we can put up a sign to direct people to the entrance.

Let's Practice!

Kristi and Adam have everything they need.

Instructions: Use the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences. There are two options that you don't need to use. Read the complete sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Word Bank

I have ordered / I have invited / you haven't ordered /
I have planned / I have had / It has been a lot /
it hasn't worked

1. _____ of work, but I'm happy with how it's turned out so far.
2. _____ a lot of people, but it is possible that no one will come.
3. _____ food and some wine and juice.
4. _____ a table for the food,
5. So that's why _____ much wine.

Extension Activity

A mini-biography of a bestselling author.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Do a search online for a bestselling author or choose your favorite bestselling author.
- Write a short biography about this person in your own words.
- Remember to include information about his/her background, the type of books that he/she writes and any accomplishments or awards received.
- If you know the author, include reasons why you like/dislike this author's work, mention a book by him/her you have read, and include some advice for how he/she can remain successful.
- Hand in the biography to your teacher.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I research a bestselling author online.

☐
☐

I write a short biography about the author including relevant information.

☐
☐

I write about my opinions if I know the author or have read one of his/her books.

☐
☐

I submit the biography to my teacher for correction.

☐
☐

Target Words

- to autograph (verb): to sign your name, especially when you are a celebrity, as a memento for an admirer
e.g. I've planned for a table for the food, a table for drinks and a table for the author to sit behind and autograph copies.
- to go awry (expression): not happen as intended e.g. We still have a lot to set up and things could still go awry.
- to set up (verb): to prepare or arrange something for use e.g. Help me set up these tables.
- armchair (noun): a comfortable chair with side supports for a person's arms
e.g. I think she ought to sit in an armchair to read.
- venue (noun): place where large or important events happen
e.g. This is a really great venue.
- alternate (adjective): one that can take the place of another e.g. Do you think we should set up an alternate entrance?
- bottleneck (expression): a point of congestion or blockage
e.g. I don't want there to be a bottleneck in the entrance.
- to direct (verb): control the operations of; manage or govern
e.g. There's a place we can put up a sign to direct people to the entrance.

Learning Points

The Present Perfect Tense

You use the Present Perfect tense in a variety of ways. Most commonly, it is used to show a connection between the past and the present. When you want to comment on the results of a past action that impacts the present, you use the Present Perfect Tense.

The form of the Present Perfect is:

subject + has/have + past participle

I have invited a lot of people, but it is possible that no one will come.

You can use the Present Perfect to talk about a state that existed in the past and still exists now.

For example:

It has been a lot of work.

Examples:

- It has been a lot of work, but I'm happy with how it's turned out so far.
- I have invited a lot of people, but it is possible that no one will come.
- I have ordered food and some wine and juice.
- I've planned for a table for the food, a table for drinks and a table for the author to sit behind and autograph copies.
- So that's why you haven't ordered much wine.

Learning Points

Modals for Expressing Duty and Advice

When you want to talk about duty and advice in the present or the past, you can use the modal verbs Should or Ought to.

Should and Ought to have basically the same meaning. They are interchangeable for the most part, but should is more commonly used in North America.

Let's look at some examples:

We should/ought to make sure that there's enough space for everyone.
(duty/responsibility)

You should invite all your friends. (advice)

You can talk about past obligations or duties by using should have and ought to have + past participle.

For example:

I think I should have ordered some more.

We ought to have made more food!

Examples:

- Maybe I should have invited more of my friends and family.
- I think I should have ordered some more.
- Yeah, you should have ordered more.
- I think she ought to sit in an armchair to read and the kids can sit on the floor.
- We should make sure that there's enough space for everyone.

